

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A first connector housing is provided with a first guide member extending in a first direction. A second connector housing is adapted to be fitted with the first connector housing in the first direction. The second connector housing is provided with a second guide member extending in the first direction. The first guide member and the second guide member are so configured as to guide a fitting operation of the first connector housing and the second connector housing while being brought into points or line contact with 10 each other.